TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

I am working as a specialist on adult education, as a writer-journalist, and as a professor of cultural research.

I have gotten to know Bhagwan through his publications and through his lectures in Poona which I attended for six weeks. I am deeply impressed by his ideas concerning a new humanity and culture. The communities that have been inspired by him all over the world represent a new model for living together which leads to much less frustration, deviant behavior, violence, and criminality than the statistical average in society at large.

Bhagwan's religious philosophy is not sectarian in nature, but rather a synthesis of eastern and western thought, that casts a new light on the therapeutic, pedagogical, and philosophical questions of today.

Bhagwan must be allowed to stay in the country that we Europeans still appreciate as the land of unlimited opportunity and freedom: the United States of America.

Sincerely yours,

Dieter Duhm, Ph.D.
