Dear Sir,

I am a lawyer, graduate from the University of Louvain. For many years, I have been a banker in international banks - amongst which the Continental Bank of Illinois. I also work as a copy writer with Benton & Bowles, an American advertising society.

The purpose of this letter is to state that, for me, Bhagwan Shree Rajmush is an extraordinary person. He is one of the greatest spiritual masters that I would compare to Buddha. His teachings are universal and his whole work is to make a synthesis of the religious traditions in the world.

Being a disciple of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh, I know the positive change that His methods and His presence can accomplish at the level of the individual and the communities: relaxation, better performance in work, regression of mental diseases, of aggressivity and neurosis of any form.

The persons in contact with him transform continuously for the best and can share through a better communication their joy of living.

I think that The United States of America should not afford the shame of rejecting from <sup>their</sup> one of the last free republic, a personality of the dimension of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh and that the legal right reserved to the extraordinary person to stay in The United States of America should be used in His favour.

respectfully yours,
