

Gent, 19th July 1983.

To whom it may concern,

I work in a secondary school with pupils from twelve till sixteen. I teach ethics and several disciplines in language such as dutch grammar, literature and drama. I am a member of a workshop for renewal of teachingabilities. I also work on the redaction of a magazine about language teaching.

For my work I read a lot and more specifically I am very interested in new ways of thinking. So I made acquaintance with Bhagwan Shree Rajneeshes books. His thoughts and vision on creativity have been very usefull to me in my schoolpractice. On the other hand my personal life was influenced by his insights on modern psychotherapeutic techniques. To me Bhagwan's work is of great importance because of its universality.

Yours sincerely,
