To whom it may concern:

During my study of Padagogics, Sociology and Art at the Justus-Liebig-University Giessen and my work with children and young people I've got many inspirations from the philosophy of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh. His kind of view from the relationship between parents and children and also adults and children helps me to understand the difficulties which I've had in my position as a social-worker.

Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh teaches to have a great trust into the individual development of each child to unfold itself to an individuum with self-consciousness and with its individual qualities. Therefore a great acceptance and tolerance from the adults for the children is needed, and also awareness of the own faults during the educational process.

I know the philosophy of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh from his books and his tapes. Also some visits in his centers show me that his people are trying a new way of life, which contents a new relation between parents and children. I could see the children taking part at the work, learning at school and playing with their friends. They are free, happy and balanced.

My opinion is that the philosophy and the teachings of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh can bring a lot of inspiration for everybody of us.

Yours faithfully
