To whom it may concern,

I have been a disciple of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh for only two months, so I came to him during his silent period.

This has never been a problem for me, as there are many volumes of books, as well as audio- and video-cassettes available if I want to actually find out what he has said on various subjects.

My main connection with Bhagwan, however, goes beyond words. It is a silent communion from heart to heart.

Recently I had the opportunity to visit Rajneeshpuram for the Second Annual World Celebration. During this visit I sat at Bhagwan's feet in silence for an hour each day. Just sitting silently, feeling the energy of the master was a profoundly moving and healing experience for me. No words on the master's part could have equalled the power of his silence.

As a single supporting parent of two young children I experience many pressures in my life. After my journey to Rajneeshpuram I felt a new strength and stillness, which began in the presence of Bhagwan. This has helped me in my relationships with my children and to feel less stressed at work.

I am planning to return to Rajneeshpuram next year for the Third Annual World Celebration so that I can once again sit in silent communion with Bhagwan.

The thought that he may not be there in the future for me to visit is a sad one. It would be a great loss to me.

Yours sincerely

Ma Bodhipriya
