to whom it may concern,

I became a disciple of Bhagwan Shree Rajinens in early January of this year, and this experience has dramatically changed my life.

As a parent, I rejoice in the mutual love and respect which is now a part of our home, due very largely to my reading and understanding of the words of Bhagwan.

In my professional life as a music teacher, I have changed my methods of expression and tuition, and the lessons have become beautiful, spontaneous and full of love.

most important of all, however, was the visit I made to Oregon this year; to sit in silence with Bhagwan, and experience the most intimate and complete communion I have ever felt. Without the disturbance of spoken words, this communication of love is wonderfully total.

Bhagwan has my devotion, love and service and his silent message to the world is one of the greatest of human needs today - that of the availability of free flowing love for all.
